Foreword

In November 1967, a group of Iowa financial aid directors found a quiet corner at the MASFAA conference in Bloomington, Indiana, and talked about the need for a state organization. Everyone agreed that Iowa would benefit from a state level association.

Acting on this informal consensus, John Moore of the University of Iowa convened a meeting of some 30 financial aid people in Des Moines on May 14, 1968. A Steering Committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws and to schedule an organizational meeting. Jim Lenguadoro of Wartburg College chaired the Steering Committee which included: Dennis Jensen of the University of Northern Iowa, Don Culbertson of Iowa Central Community College, Ed Jackson of Marshalltown Community College, Nick Ryan of Grinnell College, Willis Ann Wolff of the Iowa Higher Education Facilities Commission, and (by acclamation) John Moore.

The organization meeting was called for August 2, 1968, at the Savery Hotel in Des Moines. Forty Charter members attended. They adopted a constitution and by-laws and elected their first slate of officers.

G. Support Staff Workshops - A one-day workshop for support staff employees of both Admission and Financial Aid offices. This workshop provides opportunities for these employees to learn more about financial aid and to network with other employees in similar positions. Beginning with the 2004-2005 years, the Support Staff Workshop is partnered with IACAC and IASFAA. The Support Staff Workshop is offered every other year, opposite the Leadership Symposium. First event held September 24, 1979, and has been held regionally, over the ICN and centrally in one location.

H. Make High School Count – Christine Ditter served as chair of the subcommittee for the first "Make High School Count" in Iowa. It was held May 20, 2002 in the Schindler Education Center at the University of Northern Iowa in Cedar Falls. She worked with Kara May from Simpson College. The rest of the planning committee included: Katherine Coates, Tracy Havener and Dan Holt.

The program is an effort to increase the number of Iowa students who go to college and was presented by IASFAA and IACAC in cooperation with ACT and UNI. This was a program to help the 7th and 8th graders as well as their parents prepare for their future. There were over 70 students who attended and over 100, including parents. The program covered topics that included taking the right classes in high-school, using your school counselor as a resource, choosing a college and applying for admission, paying for college and advice from current college students. It also included a mini college fair.

Years in Review

1969 - 1970

This was the year that —

Nixon moved into the White House on his second try.

Martin Luther King and Bobby Kennedy were assassinated.

Neil Armstrong left footprints on the moon.

Teddy Kennedy met his Chappaquiddick.

Joe Namath retired from football at age 26 and took up modeling pantyhose.

The Iowa Tuition Grant Program got underway with an initial funding of $1,500,000 and a maximum grant of $1,000.

It was also the year that the second IASFAA conference was held on October 16 at Grinnell College. The same officers were elected to serve for another year. The membership voted to assess dues of $5.00 a year for regular members (those employed in the administration of campus financial aid at colleges in Iowa) and $3.00 for associate members. Voting and the right to hold office were restricted to regular members.

1970 - 1971

This was the year that —

The U.S. Postal Service went free enterprise.

Voting age was lowered to 18.

Simon and Garfunkel won a Grammy Award for their "Bridge Over Troubled Waters."

It also was the year that the infant IASFAA achieved financial stability. At the September conference at Marycrest College, Treasurer George Bachelder reported that the Association's debt to Dr. Wellbourne had been paid and a balance of $166.65 remained in the Treasury. Attendance at this meeting is lost in the mists of time, but the minutes show a "potential membership" of 65.

1971 - 1972

This was the year that —

Nixon visited the Kremlin, a "first" in presidential history.

Five men broke into Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate Apartment complex.

Helen Reddy was belting out "I Am Woman", earning a Grammy and the applause of Women's Rights groups.

It was also the year that IASFAA began to gather steam. The growing organization established a continuing program of training and information for high school guidance personnel, sponsoring four workshops across the state. A Speakers Bureau was organized under the leadership of Michael White of Iowa State University to respond to calls for participation at college nights and other requests for information on financial aid.

The first IASFAA Newsletter was published in December 1971 by Delwood Bagley. It reported that IASFAA had 53 dues-paying members. It also offered a county-by-county report on average farmland values (supplied by Iowa State University). Iowa's fertile land was selling at per acre prices of $261 to $470 depending on location.

On January 20, 1972, IASFAA sponsored a forum at the Kirkwood Hotel in Des Moines to give the American College Testing Program and College Scholarship Service a platform for discussion of their competing need analysis systems. Both firms were bidding to provide services to the Iowa HEFC for the state scholarship and grant programs, and IASFAA assisted in the evaluation process.

1972 - 1973

This was the year that —

Supreme Court upheld the right of abortion during the first six months of pregnancy.

Senate hearings began peeling away the layers of the Watergate scandal.

The Sting won the Oscar for best picture.

The Education Amendments of 1972 authorized the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, later renamed the Pell Grant in honor of its prime sponsor.

The Education Amendments, still to be voted upon by Congress, were a major topic at the IASFAA fall meeting in Cedar Falls. Members were urged to write their Congressional representatives to solicit support for the NDSL, which was under threat of phase-out in Federal funding. This was the first of a long series of deathbed scenes for NDSL, which has proved remarkably resilient.

Charter member Dan Seaton, retiring after 16 years at Simpson College, received notice that he had won $25,000 in the Readers Digest Sweepstakes - a retirement bonus that is unparalleled in the annals of IASFAA!

Less cheerful news in the spring of 1973 was the closing of Parsons College in Fairfield, which graduated its last class in June.

1973 - 1974

This was the year that —

Resignations of top Administration aides made headlines regularly.

Congress voted for impeachment proceedings.

Stevie Wonder had us all humming "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" - a Grammy winner recording.

It also was the year that ACT got the contract for processing BEOG applications. John Moore was appointed State Trainer for the new federal program by NASFAA, which had been awarded a training contract. Workshops were held throughout the state.

At the annual meeting in Iowa City on October 12, 1973, the IASFAA constitution was amended to give the vote to associate members. IASFAA began holding spring meeting in 1974 with Briar Cliff College hosting the first one in Sioux City. The membership had increased to 64 and the Treasury holdings to $612.50.

1974 - 1975

This was the year that —

Nixon resigned the Presidency and received a full pardon from his successor, Gerald Ford.

Congress sent $405 million to Vietnam and the U.S. opened its doors to Vietnam refugees, with Iowa taking a leading role.

The Keppel Task Force was appointed to try to bring order to the patchwork quilt of student aid programs.

It was also the year that the Iowa Voc-Tec Grant Program gave out its first awards, and the initial allocation of State Student Incentive Grant funds from Washington allowed the HEFC to double the number of State Scholarships. John Moore served as MASFAA President. The old Parsons campus in Fairfield took on new life when Maharishi International University opened its doors in September 1974.

A record-breaking blizzard in early April did not prevent IASFAA from holding its spring meeting in Dubuque. Much of the discussion centered on recommendations for coordinating the requirements and delivery schedules of the federal and state programs, the campus financial aid office, and the major need analysis services.

1975 - 1976

This was the year that —

The U.S. began celebrating its Bicentennial, and tall ships from around the world sailed into New York Harbor.

Viking I and II gave us a close-up of Mars.

Alex Haley's Roots won the NAACP award for highest achievement by a black American - and inspired hundreds of new amateur genealogy enthusiasts.

It was also the year that the labors of the Keppel Task Force began to pay off with agreement on a uniform methodology of need analysis (for everything except the Federal Basic Grants). The State of Iowa got on the bandwagon by adopting a single application process to serve all three of the state's programs. The Parents' Confidential Statement became the Financial Aid Form (FAF).

IASFAA went to work on designing a common financial aid transcript under the chairmanship of Kirk Russell of Briar Cliff College and, later, Wilhelm Eck of Divine Word College. Another special project undertaken this year was the development of a Certification instrument for financial aid professionals.

The spring meeting of IASFAA was held in Des Moines on April 28-29, and once again the membership was rallied to do battle for the preservation of the campus-based programs, which Congress was considering "re-programming" to provide supplemental funding for the BEOG.

1976 - 1977

This was the year that —

President Carter pardoned the Vietnam draft-evaders.

Congress, in the Amendments of 1975, challenged the states to pick up the pieces of the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

Annie Hall carried off the Oscars for Best Picture, Best Actress (Diane Keaton) and Best Director (Woody Allen).

It was also the year that IASFAA adopted a common form for a Financial Aid Transcript at the fall meeting in Cedar Rapids on September 27-28.

Paul Aasen of Wartburg College and Maralee Frazee of Des Moines Area Community College continued to devote their energies to development of a Certification instrument. Certification was a major topic for discussion at the spring meeting in Fort Dodge, with participation by representatives from the Missouri financial aid association.

1977 - 1978

This was the year that —

The Supreme Court made history with the Allan Bakke "reverse discrimination" decision, ruling that affirmative action does not imply a firm quota system.

The Court also ruled that women reporters could not be barred from men's locker rooms.

"All In The Family" won an Emmy Award, Debbie Boone "Lit Up Our Lives," and the New York Yankees did it again!

It also was the year that Judy Harper of the University of Dubuque served as MASFAA President. Governor Ray appointed a task force to study the pros and cons of a state guaranteed student loan program. Paul Aasen chaired this study group which included IASFAA members John Moore, Shirley Perl, John Huston and Willis Ann Wolff, as well as several lenders. Acting on the task force recommendation, supported by the Governor, the Legislature authorized a state program under administration of the Iowa College Aid Commission (HEFC under a new name).

IASFAA meetings focused on the newly approved Multiple Data Entry system, which allowed students to apply for the Pell Grant on a standard need analysis form, but necessitated a controversial new delivery system. As a trade-off for MDE, need analysis forms henceforth had to be distributed in December and filed no earlier than January. The tuition tax credit battle was another issue under hot discussion.

1978 - 1979

This was the year that —

The near catastrophe at Three Mile Island added fuel to Anti-Nuke protests.

The House Select Committee on Assassinations concluded that conspiracy was likely in both President Kennedy's and Martin Luther King's murders-but found no evidence for further prosecution.

The Bee Gees album of "Saturday Night Fever" rated a Grammy.

It also was the year that the IASFAA held its second Annual Open Golf Tournament in conjunction with the fall meeting in Waverly. The team of Nichols and Bannister prevailed for the second year over Dietz and Heaney.

The Middle Income Student Assistant Act removed the income ceiling on subsidized guaranteed student loans, increased the average Basic Grant and expanded that program to include many more eligible students.

IASFAA co-sponsored the first edition of Bridging the Gap, a slide film produced in cooperation with the ICAC, ACT and the Department of Public Instruction.

Validation requirements imposed by the Feds caused consternation and the Reauthorization battle lines began to form.

1979 - 1980

This was the year that —

Ninety people were taken hostage at the American Embassy in Teheran, Iran, by militants demanding U.S. return of the former Shah who was in New York for medical treatment.

The Federal Government bailed out Chrysler.

U.S. boycotted the Moscow Summer Olympics in protest over Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

It was also the year that IASFAA dues went up to $10 by membership vote at the fall meeting in Cedar Rapids. The Treasury reported a balance of $1,441.99. Eight financial aid workshops for high school guidance personnel were held around the state. Under the chairmanship of Gary Nichols, professional development and training workshops were held in several different sites. IASFAA organized a statewide "hot line" network to keep the membership posted on developments affecting financial aid programs.

The Education Amendments of 1980 raised the maximum GSL limits to an aggregate potential of $40,000 for undergraduate and graduate study and authorized a new loan program for parents. The Amendments also increased the maximum SEOG from $1,500 to $2,000 and allowed for a fifth year grant.

At the spring conference in Ames, the constitution was revised to delete sexist language and the Certification Development Committee was eliminated from the list of standing IASFAA committees. Membership has grown to 131, and the Treasury balance was $3,113.29.

1980 - 1981

This was the year that —

John Lennon was shot by a disgruntled Beatles fan.

Americans watched an average of 29.3 hours of TV per week, with 60 Minutes, Dallas, Three's Company and MASH as top favorites.

For those who found time to read, Readers Digest and TV Guide were running neck to neck in circulation.

The Iran hostages were released minutes after President Reagan's Inauguration.

It also was the year that a 3.6% cutback in all state spending was mandated to keep Iowa's budget in the black, and the Administration's cost-cutting campaign continued at the federal level with the GSL Program as a prime target. Social Security educational benefits were in a phase-out mode. On the bright side, the State Legislature authorized the new Iowa PLUS loans to parents Program.

At the spring meeting, IASFAA approved a "cooperation and coordination" agreement with the Iowa Vocational Rehabilitation Department. The membership hit a new high of 167, and the Treasury contained a healthy $5,143.53.

1981 - 1982

This was the year that —

Iowa went to the Rose Bowl against Washington.

Sandra Day O'Connor became the first woman appointed to the Supreme Court.

Oscars went to Henry Fonda and Katherine Hepburn for their performances in On Golden Pond.

It also was the year that Mary Haldane served as President of MASFAA, Maralee Frazee as a Member-at-Large and Wilhelm Eck as Membership Committee Chairman.

MASFAA's recently developed EARS (Early Alert Referral Service) Program had two Iowa liaison people in a single year. Because EARS worked so well for Priscilla Parker, she found an out-of-state job and Peg Tarbox of Mt. Mercy College became Iowa's EARS.

IASFAA's Professional Development Committee held a special workshop for new financial aid officers under the leadership of Gary Gevik, and the annual regional series of high school counselors' workshops continued under the coordination of Pete Sidwell. Governor Ray proclaimed the week of January 18, 1982 to be Financial Aid Awareness Week in Iowa, and Dartle Atherton of AIB did a great job of keeping financial aid in the spotlight.

1982 - 1983

This was the year that —

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India came to the U.S. to talk with President Reagan, speak at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and confer with the Secretary General of the United Nations.

The unemployment rate and the federal deficit hit record highs. But the crime rate remained stable with 10 percent of American homes being touched by burglary or act of violence.

Roxanne Conlin, first woman to run for Governor of Iowa, was defeated by Terry Branstad.

It also was the year that Dennis Jensen, a charter member of IASFAA and the Financial Aid Director at University of Northern Iowa for many years, lost his life in an automobile accident on a rain-slick interstate. In his memory, IASFAA contributed to the Dennis Jensen Memorial Scholarship Fund at UNI.

IASFAA voted several constitutional changes, including a change in election of officers from the fall meeting to the spring meeting. This meant that the 1982-83 slate of officers served for a one-and-a-half year term. The second Financial Aid Awareness Project, extended to a month this year, was a big success, reported Chairman Ann Leib. A total of 39 IASFAA members filled 171 requests for presentations or information on financial aid.

1983 - 1984

This was the year that —

The U.S. "copped" most of the gold medals at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

The first woman in U.S. history was nominated to run as Vice President.

Congress passed an Education Appropriations bill before the end of the fiscal year for the first time in five years.

It also was the year that the GSL interest rate dropped to 8 percent for first time borrowers. The ICAC announced that it was passing on the benefits of the successful Iowa GSL Program by reducing the insurance fee for borrowers and contributing a per application payment to the schools to help defray cost of processing.

Mary Haldane of Drake University served as President of NASFAA. Wilhelm Eck received the NASFAA Outstanding Service Award for his achievement as chairman of the Membership Committee.

IASFAA adopted a logo and slogan - A WAY TO GROW - at its fall meeting in Ames. A resolution was approved calling for repeal of the Solomon Amendment requiring Selective Service Registration for all male applicants for federal financial aid.

IASFAA achieved tax-exempt status. A "mentor" system was established to help new FAOs with the volunteer participation of a group of ten experienced members. Governor Branstad proclaimed December and January as Iowa Financial Aid Awareness Season. Everyone began worrying about Reauthorization and what it might mean for financial aid programs, and a Reauthorization Task Force was appointed to keep all members up-to-date on developments in Washington.

The spring meeting was held in Des Moines in conjunction with the Iowa Association of College Admissions Counselors and the Iowa Community College Student Services Association. Membership chairman reported that IASFAA had 180 members at the start of the year. The count by type of institution was: Public- 45; Private non-profit - 59; Proprietary - 26. The remaining 20 members were persons not affiliated with a post secondary institution. By the close of the 1983-84 year, IASFAA membership had reached an all-time high of 228, and the Treasury held $7,348.91.

This was the year that —

The U.S. Women's Soccer Team wins the World Cup.

The Treasurer went to computerized checks.

Susan Ladd was elected Vice President of MASFAA.

IASFAA used the website for the first time for conference registrations and memberships which allowed easier access for registration and the cross-referencing of current paid member with their conference registration.

The association voted to merge the membership, directory and newsletter editor committees into Electronic Services Committee so these functions could become available and coordinated via the IASFAA website.

The Community Outreach committee developed "College for A Day" service project.

The first annual review of the treasurer's records was conducted.

The fall conference was held in Cedar Rapids and the spring conference in Des Moines.

2000 - 2001

It was the year that —

Several changes were initiated during the 2000-2001 year for the Iowa Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. The elected officers were Tim Kremer, President, Anna Mae Remmen, Past President, Laurie Wolf, President Elect, Mike Epema, Vice-President, Tracie Pavon, Secretary, Christina Hlas, Treasurer and the three Delegate-at-Large positions held by Teresa Thiede, Julie Molenburg, and Tracy Havenor.

This is the year IASFAA moved toward providing electronic services to the membership. It was proposed to create a new Standing Committee, the Electronic Services Committee to move the association into the arena of electronic processing. The plan was brought to the Executive Council to eliminate the Directory Committee and the Membership Committee and to roll those responsibilities into a newly formed Electronic Services Committee. The proposal was passed by the Executive Council and later voted on and passed by the membership at the April 6, 2001 IASFAA Business meeting. As a result, the web site provided an on-line membership registration and directory. This was also the first year the Newsletter was provided on-line. On June 22, 2001, the Electronic Services Committee reported a membership total of 298 paid members for 2000-2001.

The Long Range Planning Committee was brought out of dormancy and re-activated. Debbie Craig chaired the committee and moved IASFAA toward a five year plan which not only included a fiscal plan, but created visions, goals and a revised mission statement for the association. Tim Kremer developed a five year fiscal plan which included increases in membership fees to $50, $55 and capping at $60 by the year 2006, to keep the association fiscally viable. The plan was passed by the Executive Council and later approved at the IASFAA April 6, 2001 Business meeting.

The Professional Development Committee moved toward meeting the membership's needs by becoming a repository for training activities. The committee archives both paper, electronic and videotapes of the IASFAA conference sessions.

The Community Outreach Committee's budget was increased to allow for additional responsibilities in developing early awareness programs and projects.

The Association bought a new Bonding and Liability insurance policy to provide protection at all its activities and conferences. Coverage IASFAA did not have previously was an "employee dishonesty" to protect against loss of cash for those officers with access to the Association's liquid assets. Tim Kremer worked with Cottingham & Butler from Dubuque, Iowa in providing coverage to include general liability insurance for $2,000,000, employee dishonesty clause for $100,000, fire damage expense for $50,000, medical payments of $5,000, property coverage (computers, cameras, etc.) of $10,000, forgery and alteration for $2,500, coverage to rebuild accounts receivable in case of damaged records for $10,000, coverage on money and securities on premises for $10,000 and $5,000 for off-sight premises (new to IASFAA), and $10,000 coverage on valuable papers (replacement cost for lost or damaged papers). The most important part of the new policy was having the Treasurer and one other person with access to the cash covered without requiring the individual to be bonded.

The IASFAA Leadership Symposium was re-activated at the discretion of the President, Tim Kremer. The Symposium is a great way to train, reward and give back to the members of IASFAA. Since it is not a self-supporting training, a line was added to the budget to fund the symposium from other income sources of the organization, such as membership dues, cash above and beyond the reserve, sponsors and friends of the Association. Cathy Remakel was asked to be the leader of the Symposium and along with her team, brought back the IASFAA Leadership Symposium with resounding success.

All the committees played a vital role in another successful year for IASFAA. The chairs of the Associate Members (Mary Jo Smith), Awards (Karna Hofmeyer), By-Laws (Roberta Johnson), Community Outreach (Mary Jacobsen), Professional Development (Beth Oakes), Long Range Planning Committee (Debbie Craig), Program (Chris Morgan), Research (Nancy Ankeny), School Relations (Brenda Nicholson-Easter), Electronic Services (Debbie Barger), Federal and State Issues (Lois Mulbrook), Site Selection (Curt Bolte), Site Coordinating (Cathy Hoch), and Sponsorship (Sharon Miles), all did an outstanding job.

The 2000-2001 year was one of many changes that could not have been accomplished without the many volunteers of IASFAA including the elected officers, the committee chairs, and the many committee members.

2001 - 2002

This was the year that —

Terrorism struck at the hearts of Americans with the September 11th attacks on the Pentagon and the World Trade Center Towers.

The Community Outreach Committee hosted its second annual Make High School Count program, where over 200 participants benefited from a free program.

Susan Ladd is elected as Commission Director from the MASFAA region to NASFAA's board of directors

John Beneke was elected President-Elect of IASFAA.

2004 – Current

In 2010, the Delegates at Large determined there were more efficient ways for the membership to look at "The Year in Review", namely through websites that specialize in gathering this type of information. Below is a link for the membership to look up pertinent information that has happened in a given year.

<http://www.brainyhistory.com/>

2013

In 2012-13, the Delegates closely reviewed the Policy and Procedures Manual and recommended modifications to update language and committee duties and functions. The Delegates also re-drafted the Reserve and Investment Policies, which were approved by Executive Council in April 2013. Additionally, the official spelling of the FAAM flamingo was determined as "Freida."

2014

Beginning with the 2014-15 FAFSA, dependent students are required to include the income and other required information from legal parents (biological and/or adoptive) if the parents live together, regardless of the marital status or gender.

On June 26, 2013, the Supreme Court struck down the section of the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) that provided that for purposes of federal programs, a marriage can only be between one man and one woman. Prior to the ruling, the US Department of Education (Department) had interpreted all provisions of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended (HEA), implementing the FAFSA in accordance with Section 3 of DOMA (which prohibited all federal agencies from recognizing same-sex marriages for purposes of federal programs). Guidance from the Department following the ruling stipulated that ‘a student or a parent is considered married if the student or parent was legally married in any domestic or foreign jurisdiction that recognizes the relationship as a valid married {regardless of whether the marriage is between two persons of the same sex or opposite sex}, regardless of where the couple resides.’

Gainful Employment: The Department of Education (ED) released final rules for gainful employment programs this year – and was sued by the Association of Private Sector Colleges and Universities shortly thereafter. The final rules eliminated the program level cohort default rates metric. Read NASFAA’s detailed summary of the rules and explore the Gainful Employment Center for past coverage.

Student loan interest rates: Federal student loan interest rates stayed relatively low this year, rising to 4.66 percent on the Federal Direct Stafford Loan (Subsidized and Unsubsidized) for undergraduate students; 6.21 percent on the Federal Direct Unsubsidized Stafford Loan for graduate or professional students; and 7.21 percent on the Federal Direct PLUS Loan for parents and graduate or professional students.

Student debt: Student indebtedness remained a hot topic in both education and consumer news circles. The Brookings Institution garnered attention with a controversial report that student debt is not in quite as disastrous a state as many news headlines make it out to be. Politicians still featured student debt prominently in midterm election campaigns, however – perhaps most notably with Sen. Elizabeth Warren’s (D-MA) call for student loan refinancing.

Midterm elections: Congressional power shifted to the Republicans in the midterm elections, as the GOP took control of both the House and Senate. At least one news outlet, The Wall Street Journal, credited the loss for Democrats to an inability to break “partisan gridlock” on student loans.

Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN), an outspoken advocate for simplifying the Free Application For Federal Student Aid, will now head the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee.

White House Announces Move to Prior-Prior Year Income Data on FAFSA: Perhaps one of the most significant financial aid-related policy changes to come about in 2015 was the president’s executive action in September to allow the use of prior-prior year income data on the FAFSA application, beginning with the 2017-18 award year. The change will make the FAFSA application available earlier – on October 1, rather than January 1.

Federal Perkins Loan Program Expires: Despite strong bipartisan support to pass a one-year extension for the program, the Federal Perkins Loan program expired at the end of September after Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN) blocked the proposal. As the program winds down, schools across the country are now facing complex questions and procedures around grandfathering in certain students, and returning funds to the Department of Education.

Gainful Employment Regulations Take Effect: After years of writing, challenging, and revising, ED’s gainful employment regulations took effect in July 2015. The rule makes non-degree-granting programs at colleges and universities subject to certain metrics – including debt-to-income ratios and default rates

Early FAFSA and Prior-Prior Year in Action:

One of the most significant changes to financial aid policy in recent years was the Obama administration's decision to move to the use of prior-prior year (PPY) income data—a change that would allow the FAFSA application to be available to students and parents much sooner. President Barack Obama made the change possible through his use of executive action in September 2015, and just more than one year later, the Early FAFSA was released in October 2016.

Pell Grants Came Out on Top, Despite Stall on HEA Reauthorization:

Those within the higher education realm have anxiously awaited the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act (HEA), particularly now that Congress has cleared the way by reauthorizing the other large law governing K-12 education, No Child Left Behind (now the Every Student Succeeds Act). Despite the fact that action on HEA reauthorization stalled in 2016, some significant support for federal student aid programs rose to the top. Over the summer, for example, the Senate included a provision to reinstate the “year-round” Pell Grant in its spending bill, with NASFAA-supported language. Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-TN), chair of the Senate education committee, said the news on year-round Pell was the “most important news in higher education out of the Congress this year.”

Another For-Profit Giant, ITT Technical Institutes, Shuts Its Doors:

In a trajectory that mirrored that of Corinthian Colleges in 2015, another large for-profit college chain closed its doors after being heavily sanctioned by the Department of Education. In August, ED took harsh action against ITT Educational Services, Inc. (ITT), essentially barring the for-profit chain from participating in Title IV programs, enhancing federal oversight, and restricting compensations for the company's top executives. Shortly thereafter, ITT abruptly announced that it would be closing its doors, leaving thousands of students in the lurch, and putting financial aid administrators in a unique position to counsel those students on their next steps.

ED Pushes Forward With Several New Regulations:

Throughout 2016, the Obama administration continued with its tradition of effecting change on higher education policy through the use of regulation and rules. One such rule was spurred by the flood of former Corinthian College students who began petitioning ED for debt relief after the for-profit chain collapsed last year. While there was a debt relief process in place, it was not sufficient to handle the thousands of requests that came from students. After a lengthy negotiated rulemaking process that failed to produce a consensus on the rule, ED published the final rule in October. ED also in October released its final rules on teacher preparation, which set out to condition TEACH Grant program funding on teacher preparation program quality, and align TEACH Grant regulations with Title II reporting system data.
